Letter No. 3158 & 3rd
Rda 6852-388
Dec. 1903 from the Comptroller to the Govt. of Mysore

The Police constable caught plague while on beat duty at Laranagere Mysore City and died on the 19th August 1900. He has left behind him a widow and a mother aged 18 and 50 years respectively. The widow is reported to have remarried The Dy Commr submits a recommendation ~~as~~ for extraordinary pension on behalf of the ~~wife~~ mother. The ~~Dy Commr~~ Comptroller ~~reports~~ relies on art: 382 of the Mysore Service Regulations to retarded to the pe the date of her remarriage and that thereafter the pension lapses The widow has not applied for the pension.

2. When, similarly, Sanjeevamma widow of the late Rokie com-
-otable Kuriah of the Bangalore City applied for extraordinary pension in preference to her ~~son~~ son on the ground that the son was of questionable character and would not be a help to her,
the pension was ordered to be paid to her, as a special case and as forming no precedent.
In dealing with this case, the Dewan, however observed as follows:—

"Such an act will be outside the rule, and yet within the spirit of the concession intended by the rule"

This it may be ~~treated~~ held, was treated as a special case.

The widow has remarried. She never claimed or received any pension. She may therefore be better off than the woman in the present case. The present case comes within the object of the Rules though not quite within its letter. I would not apply article 378 to this case. The case may fairly be held to come within the principle of article 382(a),(iii) a pension of Rs 2/3 may be granted to the woman for life; or until remarriage which latter is a not improbable contingency, seeing that the woman is already more than 50. × article 380(iii)

The gratuity proposed by the Secy (Rs 50) is fairly liberal, but under the circumstances I would treat the woman's case as falling under article 380 instead of under article 378 & give her a pension in preference to a gratuity.

The I. Gl of Police in Mysore

I agree with the accountant that Rs 50 is a liberal enough gratuity in this case but I am in favour of giving a pension under article 378(iii) & 382(a)(iv) in preference to a gratuity. If the Dewan is pleased to agree the draft may be revised accordingly before issue.
